Making a Will is something many of us put off until it's too late. The only way to ensure that the people you want to benefit from your estate in the event of your death is to write a legally enforceable Will. A Will helps avoid what might otherwise be complicated and sometimes unpleasant circumstances that those you care about will have to manage.

Legacies are the foundation for many charities in the UK and are vital in continuing their good work. So, you don't have to be rich and famous to make a contribution that can make a difference. We can all do something amazing just by leaving a gift in our wills to charity.

It's a common myth that only the rich and famous leave money to charity when they die. This couldn't be any further from the truth. The reality is without the gifts left in wills by people like you, many of the charities we know and support today wouldn't even exist.

A legally drawn up Will is a written statement of your wishes. It enables you to make important decisions that affect your family, friends and charities after your death.
